The Bridge Builder

An old man, going a lone highway,
Came at the evening, cold and gray,
To a chasm, vast and deep and wide,
Through which was flowing a sullen tide.
The old man crossed in the twilight dim;
The sullen stream had no fears for him;
But he turned when safe on the other side
And built a bridge to span the tide.

"Old man," said a fellow pilgrim near,
"You are wasting strength with building here;
Your journey will end with the ending day;
You never again must pass this way;
You have crossed the chasm, deep and wide—
Why build you the bridge at the eventide?"

The builder lifted his old gray head:
"Good friend, in the path I have come," he said,
"There followeth after me today
A youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm that has been naught to me
To that fair-haired youth may a pitfall be.
He, too, must cross in the twilight dim;
Good friend, I am building the bridge for him."

This year our dedication is to all those builders, mostly forgotten, who went before us. We cross bridges and travel roads built by people now forgotten. We meet in halls and worship in sanctuaries built with the time, money, and devotion of men and women whose names we likely will never hear. Let us resolve to make our contributions, some very small, some hopefully larger, but indeed let us make them. Someone, also now forgotten, advised us: "There is no limit to the good a man can do if he doesn't care who gets the credit."
